0	0	1				SE 117b. If yes, in what ways? Enjoys being around non-disabled peers, works very hard to fit in. Social skills practice, building peer relationships, extra reinforcement. Builds confidence and provides a community, learning how to ask for help, good peer models, access to students working at the same comprehension level. Very bright, needs general education level work, peer interactions. Self regulation practice with good peer modeling and opportunity to practice those skills. Stronger skills and higher expectations, motivated to engage in class, builds confidence, making progress. Benefits from a more diversified learning experience, does not feel "stigmatized" as being "different". Making progress on goals, maintaining good grades, positive reports from all teachers.
