Pennsylvania State Test Administration Training Site

The 2015-16 Pennsylvania State Test Administration Training (PSTAT) is now available. Please note that there is a new website address. To access the 2015-2016 PSTAT website, go to www.pstattraining.net.

The training content and the site have been updated for 2015-16. As a reminder, the training must be completed once for the 2015-16 school year by anyone administering the PSSA and/or Keystone Exams.

If you currently have an account for the PSTAT training site, you can log in with the email and password you used in previous years. If you have forgotten your password, click the “Forgot Password” button on the login page to have your password emailed to you. Please note that the password will be emailed to the email address you used when you registered for the site.

If you have never used the PSTAT website, you can register by clicking the “Register” button to the left of the Sign In box. It is important to use a valid email address that can be easily accessed to ensure future communications are received. This email will also be used if you forget your password. If you are the designated school or district test coordinator and oversee the training of all proctors and administrators within your school or district, select the appropriate check box. If you are only responsible for training yourself, do not select a check box.

District Assessment Coordinators must approve their School Assessment Coordinators so that they have access to the school report. To do this, navigate to the Administration Page and choose Member Approval. District Assessment Coordinators must approve or deny School Assessment Coordinator requests in this section.
